

Scouting's Centenary

How will you
be involved?

SCOUTS[®]

Creating a Better World

Scouting's Centenary

Scouting is celebrating its 100th anniversary in 2007 with programmes, events and activities for everyone.

Scouting started in 1907 with an experimental camp for 20 boys. Today, Scouting is a million times bigger and involves girls and boys, men and women from every race, religion and culture, and nearly every country in the world!

Our Centenary is a fantastic opportunity to get involved in exciting programmes and show the world what Scouting is all about. We need to make the most of this unique year to develop better Scouting for more young people and their communities.

What are you doing to celebrate our Centenary?

Here are some ideas:

- Take part in the centennial project: Gifts for Peace
- Celebrate Scouting's Sunrise on 1 August 2007
- Participate in the Join-in-Centenary programme
- Participate in events and activities throughout 2007 including the 21st World Scout Jamboree!
- Contact your National Scout Organization for more information
- See what's going on worldwide at www.scout.org

